Program

Name: Critical Language Scholarships for Intensive Summer Institutes
Year: 2007/06 - 2007/08
Field of Study: International Relations/Area Studies
Impact Statement:
I participated in the CLS - Korea program two years after graduation. CLS gave me a second chance to study U.S.-Asia regional security issues through first hand experience. I was able to visit parts of Seoul that are directly affected by the U.S. military presence that I researched at the EWC and during graduate school. Through my CLS experience, I was able to gain a broader perspective of U.S.-Asia security conditions and extrapolate on my experiences living and studying in Japan.

Program

Name: NSEP Boren Fellows
Year: 2004/09 - 2005/06
Field of Study: Language & Literature
Impact Statement:
As a recipient of the NSEP David L. Boren Graduate Fellowship, I participated in Stanford University's ten-month advanced, intensive Japanese language training program in Yokohama, Japan. I received funding to continue my graduate research on the impacts of U.S. military bases in Japan and how this affects the bilateral security relationship between the U.S. and Japan. Upon the completion of my language training, I interned at the National Diet of Japan Upper House and the U.S. Embassy in Tokyo, focusing on Japan's free trade agreement policies and food security policies.

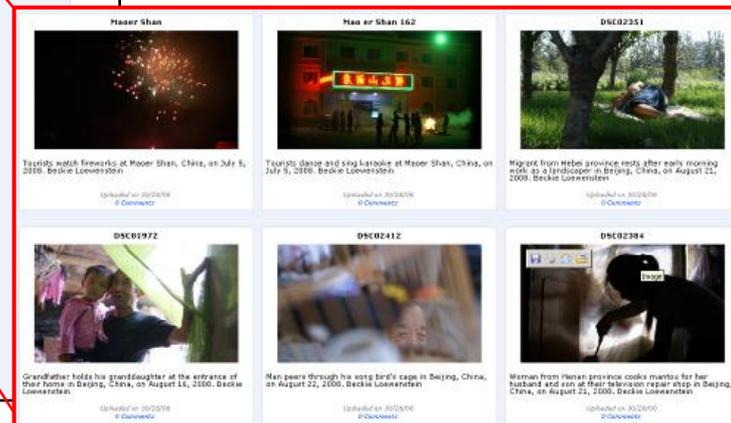

Program

Name: East-West Center
Year: 2004/06 - 2004/08
Field of Study: International Relations/Area Studies
Impact Statement:
The second research internship I completed at the EWC was completely different than the first in that in addition to analyzing U.S.-Japan security issues, I worked closely with a web development team to launch the public and private websites for Dr. Sheila Smith's "Shifting Terrain" project.
I frequently attended brown bag lectures and other events, which sparked my curiosity to learn

To the right, there is a 'Recent Alumni News' section with several news items, each with a 'Read More >' link. On the far right, there is a 'Browse By Region' section with a world map and a 'SELECT A REGION' dropdown menu. A red box highlights the 'Read More >' link for the Q&A Live discussion, which leads to a detailed view of the discussion.

This is a detailed view of the Q&A Live discussion page. It includes the title 'Q&A Live Discussion: Ambassador Craig Kelly on the Pathways to Prosperity in the Americas Initiative' and a 'Back to Listing (Download this transcript)' link. The page lists the date and time: 'When: Thursday Oct 30, 2008 at 13:00 CDT'. It also lists the guest: 'Guests: Craig Kelly' with a photo. The moderator is listed as 'Moderated By: Kristin Smith (Moderator)'. The description provides context: 'Ambassador Craig Kelly, a Fulbright alumnus currently serving as Principal Deputy Assistant Secretary of the Bureau of Western Hemisphere Affairs at the U.S. Department of State, joined State Alumni live on Thursday, October 30, 2008 from 2:00 p.m. to 3:00 p.m. EDT (13:00-19:00 GMT) to discuss the free trade initiative Pathways to Prosperity in the Americas. Pathways was announced by President Bush and eleven other leaders of Western Hemisphere nations on September 24, 2008. The initiative was adopted to ensure that the benefits of trade and investment liberalization are broadly shared throughout Latin America and the United States. Specifically, Pathways provides a forum for leaders to discuss trade opportunities and to exchange best practices for labor and environmental standards and enforcement, deepens connections among regional markets and further reduces barriers to trade, increases awareness of international trade'.

Saima Khuro

Posted at 2009-02-02 8:18 am by GroupTextUser(Super Admin)

Saima Khuro - Pakistan February 2009

Saima Khuro, an alumna of the Pakistani Educational Leadership Institute \(PELI\), is a science teacher at F. G. Girls Model School, an all-girls high school in Islamabad, Pakistan. Recognized for her leadership capabilities, Khuro was selected to spend a month learning about the American educational system at the Pakistani Educational Leadership Institute at Plymouth State University \(PSU\) in New Hampshire. Hosted by the Office of Citizen Exchanges, Khuro shared expertise and experience garnered working as a high school teacher in Pakistan with her American counterparts at PSU. During the program, she developed an action plan for integrating at her school in Islamabad what she learned once she returned home to Pakistan. Following her PELI exchange, Khuro implemented her plan by establishing a "Save the Environment Club" among Pakistani high school students at her school.

Upon her return to Pakistan in August 2008, Khuro launched the nine-week project at her school. The Save the Environment Club's vision is, "to make the environment cleaner and healthier." Khuro's visions for the project included encouraging the participating students to become active and responsible citizens for environmental issues; and sensitizing students to the importance of reusing materials and environmental preservation. This was achieved by educating the students about conservation and by raising awareness within the local community. Making connections between the United States and Pakistan, Khuro highlighted how developed nations are dealing with environmental problems. She said, "In an underdeveloped country, don't drink water, in a developed country, don't breathe the air."

One of the project's most dynamic components was "Plantation Week," during which the students sowed seeds in small pots and donated them to the school. The students were taught how to reuse different materials and share their knowledge with their families and peers by distributing plants they sowed. The club also held a "Cleanliness Week," during which members of the club cleaned up the school grounds and surrounding areas, then trimmed the overgrown grass and weeds. Other activities included essay writing and poster and debate competitions among the students to raise civic awareness among local community members.

Khuro took her Save the Environment Club project to a global level by creating a website to document the entire project. Through the site, Khuro links grassroots educational initiatives in Pakistan with a global network of teachers. Photos taken at F. G. Girls Model School, Islamabad, document various activities held by the club under the theme "teachers without frontiers" to demonstrate the process in which teachers can connect and help throughout the world.
